Multiple options listed above plus more. A) to take the CDRE exam for a RE sales person license & possibly C) to earn an associate degree in RE & mixed with G) to see if RE is a career path for me & because I had a provisional license in 2006 that expired after my boss was inappropriate and put me into a spiraling depression, now with my husband always on edge and my parents aging, I want to ensure I don't become homeless by having property management at minimum to fall back on. Also I needed to know if I could at this stage in life since I definitely could before. My character was being attached by multiple people and I needed to do it for myself esteem.
