- 10) Describe how resistance, social justice, and liberation as experienced by Native Americans, and other communities of color, are relevant to current issues.
- 11) Analyze and articulate concepts of ethnic studies, including but not limited to race and ethnicity, racialization, equity, ethno-centrism, eurocentrism, white supremacy, self-determination, liberation, decolonization and anti-racism.
- 12) Analyze California, and other territories, under Spanish and Mexican rule, and explain how the mission system impacted native Californians.
- 13) Explain the growth of the California population, including how that growth affected Native Americans.
- 14) Discriminate between primary and secondary sources.
- 15) Identify, recognize, and interpret the development of the United States and California constitutions, federal, state, and local governments, and the rights and responsibilities of citizens in an historical context.

Method of Evaluation

A grading system will be established by the instructor and implemented uniformly. Grades will be based on demonstrated proficiency in subject matter determined by multiple measurements for evaluation, one of which must be essay exams, skills demonstration or, where appropriate, the symbol system.

- 1) Quizzes/exams that measure students' ability to identify, recall and evaluate major themes, events, figures and interpretations in early American history from a Native American perspective, and identify cultural values and historical, social and political trends in native societies.
- 2) Quizzes/exams that measure students' ability to identify and evaluate the origins, development and philosophy behind the U.S political system and Constitution as well as identify and draw conclusions about the origins of the state of California and identify how these events impacted Native Americans.

- 3) In-class group activities and writing assignments which measure students' ability to evaluate the impact of Anglo-American values, attitudes and legislation on Native Americans, and recognize and explain the contributions of Native Americans to early American history.
- 4) Research papers/written homework that measure students' ability to contrast and evaluate the ideologies of preservation and assimilation within Native American societies and analyze issues of tribal sovereignty and tribalism; discriminate between primary and secondary sources.
