INDUSTRY PARTNERSHIPS

The JPCM builds partnerships with local businesses to inform them of Cuyamaca's excellent programs and helps them locate skilled students. Knowing industry needs and what skills are required to be successful and advance in their business is critical to not just coaching students, but also helping us shape curriculum.

Angela is present at Advisory Board meetings: inviting business partners she has developed a working relationship with as well as building new relationships with the program coordinator's and instructor's employer contacts.

The JPCM establishes and strengthens the ties between industry and Cuyamaca. We want local businesses to stay competitive by hiring the most prepared and engaged employees. This affects key business outcomes such as high productivity, profitability, and customer satisfaction. With engaged employees, employers see lower turnover rates, less safety incidents, and lower absenteeism in the workplace.

DATA TRACKING

The JPCM needs help from faculty in tracking student employment! To continue the support and funding from the state and region to keep a Job Placement Case Manager on campus, collaboration with instructors is key.

JPCM must provide data proving the metrics have been met. The California Community College Chancellor's Office designed the outcome metrics for Strong Workforce. JPCM's are tasked to provide students with the support needed to identify occupations in their field of study and ultimately, become gainfully employed.
